

ROULETTE

The ROULETTE wheel is divided into 38 spaces. Numbers 1 through 36 are colored red or black. The 0 and 00 are green. Wagers may be made with casino checks or the more commonly used ROULETTE chips. When chips are purchased at the table, the dealer will issue each player individually colored chips. These chips help the dealer and the players keep track of each person's bets. These ROULETTE chips have no value except at the game on which they were issued. Players must redeem for value chips before leaving that game.

Play begins when the players place their bets on the numbered layout (see diagram). The dealer spins the ball in the opposite direction that the wheel is spinning. A few revolutions before the ball drops the dealer will announce: "no more bets". The dealer will mark the number in which the ball has landed and pay all winning bets accordingly.
